Good Morning Indian Country,

I am excited to announce that the Democratic National Committee is hiring a Native American Engagement Director among many other positions at the DNC. This is an exciting opportunity to get involved in the important work ahead to engage Indian Country and strengthen the Democratic party as we focus on winning races up and down the ballot in 2017, 2018, and beyond.

Now more than ever, it's important that we step up to the challenge before us to push back against dangerous Republican policies that imminently threaten Native communities. Please share this message with your network and encourage qualified people to apply.
